58 Criminal Cases in County Court Calendar

Goldman Murder Case Has Been Put Over Until January Term—The Criminal Calendar to Be Disposed Of.

County court convened this afternoon for the purpose of disposing of criminal cases. District Attorney Traver has prepared a criminal calendar which includes 58 cases. These cases will be disposed of as rapidly as possible and as nearly as possible in the order in which they appear on the calendar.

The Goldman murder case has been put over until the January term by consent of the attorneys and District Attorney Traver. Application was made by counsel for Goldman to have the case put over and the application was opposed by Mr. Traver. Since that time it has been found that one of the necessary eye witnesses for The People is out of town and efforts by the sheriff to locate the witness have failed. In view of this fact Mr. Traver has consented to have the case go over until January in the hope that the witness will be located.

Crash With Bus Carrying Pupils

The Pine Hill bus of Merrihew Brothers, carrying school children, collided with a Chevrolet coupe shortly before nine o'clock this morning, at the corner of Pearl and Wall streets.

The bus going east on Pearl street on its way to the high school, struck the Chevrolet, license 2-C-2796, which was going north on Wall street, and shoved it over to the curb in front of St. Joseph's school where both cars were brought to a stop. The rear right wheel of the Chevrolet was broken, the left side of the car damaged, the running board and fender smashed and two tires punctured. Officer Bowser made an investigation. The driver of the Chevrolet car was uninjured and the bus and its occupants were uninjured.

A crowd quickly collected and assisted the drivers in releasing the two cars. The driver of the Chevrolet car resides in Brooklyn and operates a garage there. Both drivers claim they sounded their horns.

Third Arrest in Hammer Murder

Is Indicated By Police When It Is Assured That The Finger Prints on The Hammer Has Assumed Renewed Importance.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Hillside, N. J., Nov. 9.—Another arrest, the third, will be made in the Clark "hammer Murder" mystery within 24 hours, the police indicated today.

The new figure in the case is a "man close to the family," it was said. The authorities refused to reveal his identity but declared they had uncovered a chain of circumstances which would cause them to question this man some time today.

Two had been arrested so far in the slaying of William J. Clark, a member of the Ku Klux Klan, who was killed with four blows on the head with a hammer last Monday night when he was putting his car away in his garage.

His "best friend" Joseph Cowen, a handsome iron worker, is in jail, held without bail and charged with murder. His pretty wife, Mrs. Priscilla Clark, was taken into custody as a material witness and released on bail.

The hammer, with which Clark was slain weighed five pounds and was the property of Nelson Kent, the murdered man's father-in-law.

It was at first declared that the finger prints found on the hammer were blurred and without value as a means of identifying the wielder of it, but doubt was thrown on this statement today. It is now assured that the finger prints has assumed renewed importance.

New York was getting the aftermath of a blizzard which swept into Chicago and the Middle West late Saturday and left several inches of snow in its wake.

Reports from Kansas and Missouri were that the snowfall was quite heavy, so much so that drifts caused trains to be delayed.

New Accusations Are Sprung in Mitchell Case

Defense Claims War Department Permitted Austro-German Owned Flying Organization to Set Up Flying Business Near Panama Canal Zone.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Nov. 9.—After thundering new accusations of incompetency against the war and navy departments for their conduct of the air services, Colonel William Mitchell began at noon today the effort of trying to prove, through witnesses, that his charges of "almost treasonable administration and criminal negligence" against these departments were justified.

One of the fresh accusations was that the war department had permitted an Austro-German owned flying organization to set up a commercial flying business "within striking distance of the Panama Canal zone."

Startling Accusation.

"We will prove," Reid said, "that the war department has been guilty of almost treasonable administration in not forestalling the attempt of a foreign flight organization to secure a foothold in Central America, within striking distance of the Panama Canal and though often requested to do so by the chief of the air service, it ignored this menace."

Although the "foreign organization" was not identified to the court, it is understood to refer to a commercial concern, ostensibly Austrian but said to be German-owned, which has set up a commerical flying business in Central America."

Officers Statements False.

The defense counsel next cited a score of statements issued by high army and navy officers in aviation, which he charged were entirely false. One was that an army officer declared 12 anti-aircraft guns could defend any city against enemy air attacks.

Announcement of the defense plan was made by Representative Frank R. Reid, Republican, of Illinois, chief of Mitchell's counsel as soon as court convened.

"I conceive it is my duty," said Reid, "in the interests of justice and in the proper presentation of the defense of the accused, to produce direct and positive evidence which will not only convince Colonel Mitchell's accusers of their error but remove much ignorance by a revelation of the truth."

Reid declared the defense would prove the war and navy departments were guilty of an "almost treasonable administration of aviation."

Cites PN-9 Mishap.

We will prove by evidence that after the PN-9 fell in the Pacific on a trial flight to Honolulu and everyone thought the brave crew were lost forever, Colonel Mitchell was besieged by newspaper editors and press associations for a statement about these accidents. That, in response to those requests, he issued the statement of September fifth in the hope that it would arouse the conscience of the American people, and that they, knowing of his knowledge of the subject would, through their papers cause the evils to be corrected.

"In that statement, Colonel Mitchell said:

"These accidents are the direct result of incompetency, criminal negligence and almost treasonable administration of the national defense by the navy and war departments.'

"We will prove that his opinion was not only well founded, but that his statements were true, as a matter of fact."

Shenandoah Disaster.

Touching directly on the Shenandoah disaster, Reid said the defense would show that 14 men were killed, the dirigible valued at $2,000,000 destroyed and $700,000 worth of helium lost on a "publicity stunt to draw crowds for public gatherings and that the schedule of her flight was arranged so as to visit several state fairs, which had nothing to do with the naval operations."

Reid created a small sensation by declaring he would prove:

"That an officer of the navy department endeavored to get Mrs. Lansdowne, the widow of Commander Lansdowne, to give false testimony concerning her former statement that Commander Lansdowne was ordered to take the Shenandoah on her flight to the middle west over his protest."

He also declared the trip was ordered over Commander Lansdowne's protest and that this order "constituted criminal negligence."

"We will prove by evidence," Reid continued, "that no adequate meteorological arrangements are available in the United States for operation of aircraft.

"That there were no proper weather reports and that these might have prevented the wreck of the Shenandoah.

"That there were not sufficient parachutes for the men on board the Shenandoah."

Not Enough Rescue Ships.

On the PN-9 flight across the Pacific, Reid declared the navy "subjected the personnel to a possible loss of life" by only stationing rescue ships every 2000 miles when vessels were available to greatly reduce the intervals."

The generals on the jury told Reid careful attention Mitchell sat directly behind his counsel frequently whispering to his wife at his side. The audience which jammed the dilapidated old room, leaned forward in their chairs.

Considers Contempt Citations.

Then Reid announced he was considering a request for contempt citations against the acting heads of the war department for their issuing press reports on the Mitchell trial. He accused the department of sending out "propaganda detrimental to the administration of justice to the court martial."

Victory Ball Will Chase Care Away

Dance-Itching Feet Will Find Everything at Armory to Furnish Pleasure Wednesday Night—Famous Lopez Club Orchestra to Furnish Music.

After much testing of public sentiment, it has been decided by the ball committee of Kingston Post of the American Legion not to devote too much time to preliminary entertainment at the Victory Ball on Wednesday night, November 11. The survey made indicates that Kingston is in a dancing mood. The devotees of the fox-trot and waltz have dance-itching feet. And Wednesday evening will be their golden opportunity to dance in a metropolitan atmosphere of music and gayety.

It has been arranged that the orchestra shall render an unusual program of unusual music from 8:00 to 8:30. Dancing starts at 8:30 and ends at 1:00. As everyone knows, the Vincent Lopez Club Orchestra of 11 musicians, one of America's celebrated dance orchestras, will be the honey that will draw the dancing butterflies.

Those who do not dance but who wish to assist the American Legion in maintaining its Memorial Building and to encourage its welfare and Americanism work, will be amply repaid if they will come to look on. They will find plenty of exciting things to look at and listen to. It will be worth the price of admission alone to hear the famous orchestra and to see the colorful scene. Captivating music, attractive decorations, gowns of varied hue, flowers, smiling merry faces, feminine grace and charm and masculine courtliness will present a picture of vivacious happiness that will renew youth and chase worries over the brow of rainbow hill.

An advertisement elsewhere in this issue of The Freeman will agreeably surprise readers. The price of the ticket will materially assist in operating the American Legion Memorial Building, Kingston's Patriotic Service Station.

Delicious refreshments will be served, the maximum amount of dancing space will be provided on the armory floor and every arrangement for the comfort and happiness of all is assured at this social event of distinction.

The armory will open its doors Wednesday night at 7 o'clock. Tickets may be bought at the door. Everyone in Ulster county is invited. And most everyone will be there. So, on with the dance.

TWO DIVORCE CASES AT SPECIAL TERM.

Application for alimony and counsel fee were made before Judge Hasbrouck in special term of the Supreme court Saturday in the action brought by Mary Hendricks against Abner Hendricks for divorce. M. G. Auchmoody appeared for the plaintiff, Benjamin H. Brevoort appeared for Mr. Hendricks and opposed the motion. Plaintiff argued that Mr. Hendricks was capable of earning $30 a week and the defendant claimed that he had been injured some time ago while employed by the Aird-Don Company of this city and since had been unable to work. Papers were submitted.

Testimony was taken in a divorce action brought by Alfred Whitney, plaintiff, against Mabel Whitney. The parties were married in 1922 and resided at Grand Gorge. Mrs. Whitney has left her husband and her whereabouts are unknown to him. Several witnesses testified as to acts which they saw transpire between Mrs. Whitney and a married man residing at Stamford.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 9.—Cracksmen robbed the office safe of the Puritan Soap Company, of $37,800 in stocks and bonds during the night, it was discovered today.

Forcing a cellar window to gain entrance, the thieves had little difficulty in breaking open the safe which was not burglar proof. The securities had been transferred to the office from a safe deposit vault Friday, officers of the company said.

Police believe the cracksmen will have difficulty in disposing of the securities as they were non-negotiable.

Mayor Block Calls for Two Minutes' Silence

Mayor Morris Block today, at the request of the adjutant general, issued a call to the residents of Kingston to observe the nation-wide observance of Two Minute Silence, beginning at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning — Armistice Day. The mayor requests that the Two Minutes Silence be announced by the ringing of church bells, blowing of factory whistles, etc. The fire bell will also ring.

It is expected that all industry throughout state and nation will be stopped and all traffic suspended during the Two Minute Silence period that morning.

The late President Wilson said: "Two minutes of silence can entail no 'material loss: it must presage much spiritual gain." The movement was endorsed by the late President Harding during his term of office. It also has the approval of President Coolidge.

More Arrests in Assassin Plot

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rome, Nov. 9.—Tito Zaniboni, charged with attempting the assassination of Premier Mussolini, has been under police surveillance for some time, it was learned today.

The Fascist secret police had been in so close touch with Zaniboni and his movements that they had succeeded in placing one of their number with the alleged would-be assassins as his chauffeur. It was through this detective-chauffeur that they learned details of the alleged plot.

There is no confirmation of the rumor circulated on Saturday that Zaniboni had confessed.

There is no confirmation of the reported arrest of Peppino Garibaldi, grandson of the famous Italian leader. Peppino Garibaldi is believed to be in Paris.

Police have not relaxed the activities in striving to round up all implicated in the plot against Mussolini and the plans for the overthrow of the government.

Numerous arrests are being made. Those arrested last week have been released after close questioning.

Great interest has been displayed in the arrest of the beautiful Lucia Paulizzi, who is presumed to have had an affair with Zaniboni. It is declared that this woman, who keeps a restaurant in Udine, will be charged with having secured the rifle which they found in Zaniboni's hands when arrested.

Big Increase in P. O. Revenue

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Washington, Nov. 9.—The post-office department will show an increase in revenue of approximately $32,000,000 for the next fiscal year, as a result of the higher rates in the present postal law, Harry S. New, postmaster general, today told the congressional joint sub-committee investigating postage rate revision.

New estimated the total revenue for next year at approximately $565,000,000.

Despite the increase, New denounced as "inadvisable and uneconomical proposals to lower the rates on news dealer packages of periodicals and catalogues.

Coal Strike Appeal Rejected

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Nov. 9.—Another appeal for presidential intervention in the hard coal strike was rejected today by President Coolidge.

Congresswoman Edith F. Rogers, Republican, of Massachusetts, presented a gloomy view of the New England fuel situation at the White House this morning, and asked the president to appoint an "impartial board of inquiry" to investigate and try to end the strike, but admitted that she received little encouragement.

President Coolidge was of the opinion, she said, that a federal board would not be of much help at present.

Kingston Police Capture Man of Many Aliases

Nation-wide Search Ends on North Front Street When Policeman Bowser Leaps on Running Board of Automobile Driven by Harry Sitomer, Wanted in Connection With $8,000 Jewel Robbery In New York City.

Harry Sitomer, the man of a dozen aliases, was captured by Policeman Harold Bowser of the Kingston police force after a nation-wide search, on North Front street on Saturday afternoon. The officer made the arrest at the point of a gun. With Sitomer was his wife, who was Jean Victor, whose family conduct a boarding house at Accord. The couple were driving up North Front street in an automobile when Bowser stepped from behind a telegraph pole, leaped on the running board of the car and jabbed his gun into Sitomer's ribs, commanding him to throw up his hands. At police headquarters Sitomer gave his name as Jean Gilbert, aged 35 years, and said he was a bookmaker. Later in the day he and his wife were taken to New York city by Detective Thomas Horan of the New York police force.

Ross Sent Warning.

It was shortly after dinner Saturday when Chief of Police J. Allan Wood at police headquarters at the city hall received a telephone call from State Trooper Ross at Ellenville stating that a desperate criminal was driving toward Kingston in a Diana automobile and that he had a woman with him. Ross asked the local police to round up the man if possible and hold him as he was wanted in New York city for robbery.

Warning Sent Out.

Chief Wood immediately got in touch with all of the day men and sent out a general warning to be on the lookout for Sitomer.

Officers Van Buren and Dempsey, who were on special duty at the city hall, were sent out in the police Ford car to help in the search.

Bowser Located Man.

Policeman Bowser was on duty in the North Front street section of the city and shortly after hearing from headquarters he saw the car coming up North Front street from Washington avenue.

Hid Behind a Pole.

Officer Bowser when he saw the car coming immediately stepped behind a pole so that Sitomer would not become alarmed when he saw the blue uniform and then as the car approached and came opposite to him, Bowser leaped out with drawn gun on the running board of the automobile and jabbing the gun into Sitomer's ribs commanded him to stop the car and throw up his hands.

Sitomer Obeyed.

Sitomer, taken by surprise, threw up his hands after bringing the car to a stop. A few minutes later the Ford car with Officers Dempsey and Van Buren approached and seeing that Bowser was holding up a car they stopped and the man and woman were transferred to the Ford car and taken to police headquarters.

Jack Ahrens, of the A. & W. Garage on North Front street, at the request of Officer Bowser, drove the Diana car with Bowser to the city hall.

Questioned by Chief.

Sitomer was closely questioned at police headquarters by Chief of Police Wood but denied that he was wanted in New York for a jewel robbery. Under questioning he acknowledged that he was known by a number of names, including Jean Gilbert and Jean Victor, which was his wife's name before marriage.

Had Been Auto Touring.

Sitomer claimed that he and his wife had been touring the south in the automobile and produced a receipt from a garage in Memphis, Tenn., for some repair work on the car on October 24 of this year.

Wife Loaded With Jewelry.

When the car was searched at headquarters considerable jewelry was found. The woman's fingers were also covered with rings, of which the police took possession. It was estimated the jewelry seized was worth close to $10,000.

Sitomer Short and Squatty.

Sitomer is a young man, short and squatty. His wife is also of small stature. Among the many names by which he is known are Henry Dodson, Harry Sitomer, Jean A. Gilbert, Jean Victor and others.

Gun in Car.

When Sitomer was captured the side window of the car where he was sitting was down and in the pocket on the door was found a 38 calibre revolver fully loaded. The butt of the revolver so protruded that Sitomer would have no difficulty in drawing the weapon quickly.

That he did not do so was probably due to the fact that Bowser acted with such promptness in leaping on the running board of the car with a drawn revolver.

New York Notified.

Chief Wood notified the New York police department of the capture and Detective Horan immediately started for Kingston, arriving here late that day.

Sitomer Taken Back.

About 10 o'clock Saturday evening Detective Horan and his prisoner started back for New York. Sitomer was handcuffed to the side of the door of the Diana car and the woman was placed in the front seat alongside Horan, who drove.

They were accompanied as far as Highland by State Troopers and Deputy Sheriff Gaynor.

Woman Went By Train.

At Highland Mrs. Sitomer was expected to cross over to Poughkeepsie and take the train for New York. As she was not wanted by the New York police she was not placed in custody. Deputy Sheriff Gaynor made the remainder of the trip with Horan and his prisoner in the Diana car.

Hotel Alamac Robbery.

Sitomer is wanted in connection with an $8,000 jewel robbery in the Hotel Alamac in New York city in May of 1924.

The jewels were stolen from the suite of Mrs. Edna Johnson, wife of Howard Johnson, a song writer. Harry Behan, a former convict, the principal in the crime, was convicted six months after the robbery and is serving twenty years in a state prison. He is known to police also under the names of Harry Lesser, Edham, Wilson, Philips, Brent and Roth.

Victim Bound and Gagged.

In 1924 Behan and his wife made the acquaintance of Mrs. Johnson, and were invited to dinner at her suite. They arrived before the other guests and while Behan was alone with Mrs. Johnson for a moment he bound and gagged her, stripped off her jewels, seized others from her jewel case, and then escaped with his wife.

When the other dinner guests arrived they found Mrs. Johnson trussed up and unable to move or cry out for help. Shortly afterwards Behan was arrested as he was about to leave the city.

After his arrest, Behan told police that shortly before the Johnson robbery, which he admitted, he and two gunmen had invaded the apartment of Mrs. Mildred Monroe, former Follies dancer, and robbed her of $200 worth of jewels.

Stole To Pay Lawyer's Fee.

Concerning the Johnson robbery he was reported to have said that he stole the stones "to get enough to pay my mouthpiece (lawyer) at Washington" where he recently had been arrested for burglary and released under bail.

Mrs. Behan also was arrested in connection with the Johnson robbery. She said before her marriage she had been Lillian Schultz of San Francisco, daughter of a wealthy man and an actress in a Hollywood studio. She said she "knew that Behan had a police record before she married him and "married him to reform him."

Sitomer Not Mentioned Before.

At the time of the Johnson Robbery police did not mention Sitomer, and no publicity was given the search for him. Police today did not reveal what his connection with the crime had been except to say he was held on a charge of "concern."

After the Johnson robbery police said the crime bore evidence it might have been done by the same persons who killed and robbed Dorothy Kunz and Louise Lawson, "Broadway butterflies." Between the time of the Johnson robbery and the date when Behan was arrested, Edith Robe, fashionable dressmaker to both Miss Kunz and Miss Lawson was robbed of $50,000 worth of jewelry. Police expressed belief again that the same criminals had planned all three robberies. Police later announced they had determined Behan had been in Miss Lawson's apartment with her six hours before she was strangled to death. They were unsuccessful, however, in their attempts to connect him with the crime.

Search Secretly Conducted.

Then the search for Sitomer, charged with active in concert with Behan, was taken up. The trail led as far as Los Angeles to the west and south to Washington, D. C., New Orleans and Memphis.

His New York Address.

Sitomer informed the New York police that he was a salesman residing at 520 West 146th street.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Washington, Nov 9.—A nation-wide study of the forest taxation problem in relation to reforestation of privately-owned lands is being launched by the forest service, United States department of agriculture, which today announced the appointment of Prof. Fred R. Fairchild, of Yale University, as director of the investigation.

A detailed study of forest taxation will be made in all principal forest regions to determine the effect of present tax laws on reforestation and timber holdings, and the conditions that must be met in any effort to readjust present tax laws to be fair to land owners and public treasuries.

The study is the outgrowth of a country-wide investigation of reforestation conducted by a special committee of the United States senate in 1923-24. This committee reached the conclusion that timber-growing would be greatly stimulated by giving land owners security against unjust and burdensome taxation during the growing period when young forests produce no income from which taxes can be paid.

Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, in commenting upon the appointment of Prof. Fairchild, declared the forest tax study of paramount importnce to the reforestation of the country's 371 million acres of privately owned forest land.

"This tax study is one of the most important steps of recent years in forest conservation," said the secretary, "and the government is fortunate in securing Prof. Fairchild, who is one of the country's foremost authorities on forest taxation, to direct the work."

Practical results, instead of theories, will be accomplished by the study, say forestry officials, who explain that in most states reforestation is discouraged by the danger of having young timber taxed over and over again before it reaches merchantable size. As a result of the study it is expected that the federal government will be able, under the Clarke-McNary act, to help the states in a national reform of forest taxation.

SEIZED MANY SKINS.

Violators Of Law Protecting Fur Bearing Animals Prosecuted.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Nov. 9.—During the past fiscal year the game protectors of the Conservation Commission prosecuted violations of the laws protecting fur-bearing animals, and seized 381 pelts which were being illegally possessed. These pelts were of nearly every animal protected by law in this state. There were 268 skins of the muskrat, which appears to be the animal most persistently pursued during its close season; 27 skins were of deer; 26 of beaver; 24 of skunks; 22 of raccoons; two of mink; one of bear, and a deer head.

The skins having been removed from animals taken during the close seasons were in most instances unprime and such as could not be profitably worked. Such skins as were marketable, the commission sold to the highest bidder and realized from these sales $260.25.

Eleanor Glynn Says

FASHION IS EFFECTIVELY YOKED THIS SEASON, ESPECIALLY IN SPORTSWEAR.

The yoke is getting general recognition; it appears on coats, sometimes being of fur, and it appears on sports frocks far more often than it is omitted.

Blouses and jumpers also are featuring yokes—sometimes at the back only. In some cases, the effect results from a line of drawn work, in others a contrast of materials accents the line.

The model sketched is one of the several compose effects of crepe and satin, with a dash of brilliant embroidery introduced on the fitted and high cuff and on the amusing tie.

The Yoke Appears on Blouse and Skirt in This Stunning Model.

Frocks which button at the base of the throat or higher are very generally approved, although more difficult to wear than an open throat, or even a choker.

Although the flare is now the rule rather than the exception, some houses make a point of not having it obvious, while others accent it by a contrast in fabric or some trimming feature. It is a season both of clever subleties and of mosth obvious effects. The subtle touches are supplied by the higher-priced dressmakers who can specialize on exquisite handwork, which now includes inserts and appliques and such carefully executed details as a fitted hip yoke like the one indicated in the sketch.

Vesters are another way of introducing color contrasts, and metallic stitcheries and embroideries appear to advantage as a decoration for them. Ornamental buttons, of course, play an interesting part in their embellishment.

Blazer Describes His Daughter

[illegible] Daughter He Murdered Was Born Normal But Developed Meningitis Which Left Her Physically Defective and Imbecile.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Littleton, Colo., Nov 9.—"Dr. Blazer take the stand!"

This was the opening of the defense, shortly after 10 o'clock today as court convened here for the resumption of the novel "love murder" trial, in which Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer, 60 year old country doctor is charged with the murder of his 32 year old idiot daughter, Hazel Ingrit Blazer.

The crowded little courtroom was tense and anticipated a heart throbbing tale from the lips of the old fashioned doctor who will attempt to prove to the jury that he was temporarily insane when the unusual homicide occurred in an Englewood bungalow last February.

Dr Blazer walked to the witness chair and was sworn. He was noticeably nervous as he answered preliminary questions concerning his birth education and profession.

Was Born Normal.

He seemed to gain gradual control of his nerves as H. W. Spangler, associate defense counsel led him along from his early career in Ohio. Dr Blazer told of his marriage; of the birth of two children, Hazel and Frances, the imbecile daughter and the married daughter, Mrs Frances Bishop. Hazel, he said, was born in 1891 a normal child, but had an attack of spinal meningitis at the age of six weeks. This, he said left her a physical defective, as well as imbecile.

He was asked to describe her body's development. "She was like a six year old child," he testified "Her body was badly deformed; she had a curvature of the spine, a double crook like the letter 'S'

"Her chest bones were full of knots that showed through the skin. She had no control over her arms or legs."

Could Not Speak or Eat.

In answer to a query Dr. Blazer said the helpless girl "could roll on the floor; could not speak. I could understand what she wanted from her manner."

"If she had any sufferings how did you find it?"—Spangler asked.

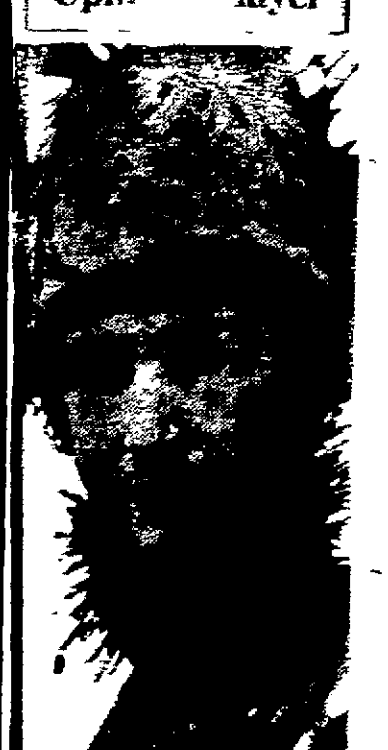
"She could not show where it was, but sometimes I could find it.

"She would go into convulsions become rigid, her eyes would close."

Dr. Blazer said the girl could not eat, but he would "prop her up in a chair and feed her with a spoon. The doctor said the girl could make a sound. She would tear up pieces of paper.

"I took complete control of her most of the time, especially in late years. My wife was a frail woman and unable to care for the girl."

Uph[illegible] Slayer



Mrs. Margaret Sanger, president of the American Birth Control League, justified the slaying by Dr. Harold E Balzer, Littleton, Col., of his imbecile, crippled daughter on the ground it was a mercy for the girl to die. Mrs Sanger said she would condone the practice of euthanasia.

The very first occupant of the witness box had scarcely given more than his name and address when opposing counsel came into conflict again.

Fur Coat Problem Is Hard to Solve

Milady's Task Is to Select Garment That Will Give Best Service.

The fur coat problem is a little different from any other perplexity that the mode supplies and a lot different from what it was in the earlier years of this enlightened century. There was a day, observes a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, when the distinction of the fur wrap depended merely on it particular skin—when the expressions "my chinchilla," "my sable," or "my seal" immediately classified the speaker in the ranks of the haute monde, entirely regardless of the silhouette or details of her epochal acquisition. The life of any particular model was measured by the durability of its pelt and the same fur coat would appear and reappear for several seasons, serenely disdainful of fashion's severest evolutions.

Granting that the fur coat has fallen completely under the dominion of the mode, what general principles are to govern its selection and what are the specific details to be considered this season? Surely it is unsound economically to add a new fur wrap to each winter's wardrobe and yet, if fashion dictates seasonal changes, what is the alternative?

The ladies who light-heartedly acquired straightline coats last winter are weeping and wailing this flaring autumn and what warranty is there that this year's modish wraps may not be consigned to the dim indubitable past in the winter of 1926-27.

The Invariable Flare.

The problem can only be solved in one way. A skilled analysis of the situation must be followed by a carefully worked out compromise—and this is the single instance where fashion permits a compromise. It is not so much a question of the moment's mode as it is of the current style cycle. Tomorrow is quite as important as today and with this consideration in mind we shall forthwith point out the middle path to pelted smartness.

The silhouette is far and away the most important consideration when acquiring a new fur wrap because [illegible] does not lend itself easily to the [illegible] of the remodeller and because [illegible]hrough the mode it is the first [illegible] to attract the eye. Last year in our fur coat analysis, we advised forsaking the straightline in favor of a moderate flare and at the same time predicted that the flare would entirely dominate the fur wrap of 1925-26. That forecast has been sweepingly realized and the flare is the inalienable mark of furred chic this season. Clearly no model that is to bear this year's vintage can omit the flare or even adopt it in a half-hearted imperceptible version. And yet it is questionable whether the extremely flared interpretations will not look the least bit jaded when next autumn comes.

A Compromise Verdict.

So far your new fur coat we counsel the flare with a gram of discretion which means that you are not to adopt the extreme or bizarre models and that you are to concentrate more on general fullness than sudden width at any specific point. Last year when we suggested the moderate flare it was considered radical advice; this year it has become conservative. But while careful analysis leads definitely to the conclusion that graceful width is to dominate fur coats next season, as well as this, it may take a distinctly different form. And so it would be unwise to commit yourself to any extreme translation of the flare. Choose the middle path and you will combine smartness and security for a happy compromise.

There is a single exception to the flared idea in fur wraps and that is in the sports or tailored models. Every other type indicates some species of flare. Some of these culminate at the shoulders and simulate a cape back but mostly they swing from a narrow hipline [illegible] front and side godets. Cape effects are most popular for the afternoon—the mode for which, although not disdaining the cape silhouette, shows a distinct preference for sheered models.

The fur coat flare is effected in as many ways as it is on dresses and cloth coats. The flare may be achieved by the godet, by the circular flounce or by the gathered straight flounce. The flounce may appear at the front, the back, at one or both sides, or all the way round the coat. Then, too, the distended effect may be arrived at through patches of fur applied to the coat in such a manner that a flare results. Less usual methods are through gathered in-set sections, inverted plaits, inset panel sections which extend into a border or the cutting of the coat on graduated circular lines.

Length of New Fur Coats.

The next consideration concerns the length of the new fur coats. The models of the current season reach either to the hemline of the dress or terminate an inch or two above. Either is satisfactory this year, but, delving once more into the future, which is preferable? There has been a tendency this autumn away from bizarrely short skirts and there are indications that by next autumn that tendency may be further accented. Furthermore the flare in a longer model adds more dignity to the general effect and inasmuch as there are sign posts which point to a return of at least the ghost of the old-time elegance, our suggestion is that you choose the longer models, everything else being equal. The ideal fur coat length should be about thirteen inches off the ground.

Collars, cuffs, and the various other details that differentiate this winter's fur coats may be adopted with no fear that next year shall find them demodes. Collars and cuffs each show a predilection for the flared silhouette and they are invariably full. Among the former, shawl collars and chin effects share the spotlight while flared cuffs often add the finishing touch to a liberally constructed sleeve.

Further smart details that mark the fur wrap of 1925-26 are the capeback, either in one piece or slashed at the center back, all-around cape effects, from borders that form a long trimming from collar to hemline, bolero effects, scarf collars, standing collars and wide revers of contrasting fur—the revers cut in one with the collar—a wide flounce that continues up the center back of the coat, gradually becoming narrower until it disappeared underneath the collar.

Fur Coat Linings.

Fur coat linings may be very ornate or quite sober. Smart sports coats of fur are frequently lined with kasha while more formal models often feature hand-embroidered silk linings or hand-painted linings depicting jungle scenes.

The reversible coat composed of cloth on one side and fur on the other and the fur-lined coat play an important part in this winter's models. Leopard, gazelle and burunduki are the furs most in evidence with this type of wrap.

So far as the pelts are concerned you may choose from this year's offerings with perfect equanimity and assurance that you will remain in the picture next year—and if necessary for several following years. There are, of course, certain sharp distinctions drawn in the character of the skins to be worn for the different occasions. For afternoon wear flat furs are easily smartest and moleskin and caracul are the two outstanding leaders in this class. The first is bleached and dyed in numerous colors, leaning principally to beige, golden brown and mahogany. Caracul comes in the more sedate hues of gray, black and brown. If you will invert that order you will have about the correct order of color frequency for the fall and winter seasons. Gray is newer than either brown or black but we suggest that the frugal wardrobe confine her spectral fancy to these two ancient favorites. And of the two our preference is for black. Mink, [illegible] baby lamb and antelope are also en route for daytime wear.

For sport [illegible]—the sports [illegible] wrap [illegible] short and [illegible] [illegible] raccoon, [illegible] and [illegible] and all the rest.

EX-GOV. "JIM" and GOV "MA."

The proposition to "vindicate" ex-Governor "Jim" Ferguson of Texas by electing his wife to the office from which he had been ousted by impeachment surprised the country generally because it was not easy to see how such a "vindication" could vindicate. Late reports convey the impression that the Fergusons planned, after getting the office back into the family, to make the ex-governor the real governor while "Ma," the figurehead, would remain a wife quite in the old conservative sense Apparently this is about the way it has worked out, for it is charged that the former governor dictates all the executive acts of the governor and not only directs the executive departments personally but dispenses favors with a liberality and boldness which he would hardly venture upon if he were personally responsible. Indeed it is asserted that neither "Jim" nor "Ma" makes any attempt to conceal the fact that the former is the real governor.

It is not surprising to read that there is wide dissatisfaction not only with these abnormal conditions but with a number of things that Mr Ferguson has been doing in the name of his wife. An investigation is called for and there is even talk of impeaching Mrs. Ferguson. It is in vain for friends to contend that "you can't attack a woman in Texas and get away with it." Apparently the agitation can not be stopped by an appeal that was robbed of its old force by the nineteenth amendment and the active entrance of women into politics During her campaign, though frankly acknowledging that her aim was to vindicate her husband, Mrs Ferguson shrewdly attacked the "invisible empire" of the Ku Klux Klan, but very many Texans are now more concerned about the only too visible empire of ex-Governor "Jim." In the very nature of things permanency for such a situation can not reasonably be expected.

OUR DIVORCE LAWS.

Mrs Rose Pastor Stokes, a Socialist who some years ago married a man of wealth, the same who is now seeking to divorce her, adds her contribution to the criticism of the law of New York "which makes it necessary to commit a crime in order to terminate a miserable marriage" South Carolina refuses divorce for any cause, and New York permits it for one grave cause only. Other states grant it for a variety of reasons, and some for practically no reason at all This situation is acceptable, theoretically at least, to the advocates of state rights or the freedom of each state to make its own laws, but centralizationists have again and again demanded a Federal law providing uniformity in grounds for divorce throughout the Union of States.

When delegates from forty-two states met in 1906 at the call of the Governor of Pennsylvania to discuss the subject the majority agreed that there are six legitimate grounds for divorce: bigamy, adultery, a criminal conviction involving two or more years in jail, extreme cruelty, wilful desertion for two years or more, and habitual drunkenness for an equal period. But it was argued that such grounds as desertion can be easily abused. No divorce at all in South Carolina, divorce in New York only for adultery, many states willing to grant it for the six reasons named above, some willing to grant it for no reason of any real weight—such existing variety shows how difficult the enactment and enforcement of a uniform Federal divorce law would be. The problem appears to be too serious to promise an early solution.

It seems to be the fashion for the highest officials of the Federal government to declare that there should be far less centralization of power and then turn right around and vigorously push legislation that invades the constitutional rights of the states. These theoretical expressions may be good "politics" at the moment, but obviously they are but wasted breath unless supported in practice.

According to a Wall Street authority the market price of the 31 companies that formerly were subsidiaries of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey totals approximately $3,800,000,000. The original trust dissolved by the Supreme Court's decision was a small affair in comparison.

Otto Kahn's distributed article on the Metropolitan Opera Company, of which he is president, is convincing in his showing that the management has no prejudice whatever against American operas or American singers, excellence being the only recognized standard, but he can hardly expect to "get away with it" when he says that the salaries paid do not depend on "name or reputation" but solely on "qualifications."

That Body of Yours

AN ITCHING SKIN.

One of the physicians of the Mayo clinic gives a timely warning to physicians, and to people generally, regarding treatment of the common condition known as itchiness or itching of the skin.

He suggests that heretofore the treatment of the itching itself has been the important point, whereas the treatment of the cause of the itching should be the first thought of physician and patient

In former days the advice was simply to put one or two dessertspoonsful of carbolic acid in a basin of water and bathe the skin, thus securing temporary relief.

Now many things can cause an itching of the skin The thought or feeling that an insect of some kind has got on the the skin, and is moving about, can cause intense itching over the body, even when there is really no insect there at all

Changes in the weather, either heat or cold, can likewise set up an itching sensation in some skins

Some drugs, such as opium, for instance, will cause this itching.

Diabetic sufferers usually complain of this condition.

The treatment for the local condition, in addition to carbolic acid, is often mild mustard baths, two or three handfuls of sulphur in a warm water bath The skin must be kept as dry as possible between the baths

Starch baths given in a similar manner are likewise soothing, and starch as a dusting powder also helps to allay the itching.

Drugs and vaccines have been used to quiet an itching skin, but unfortunately many of these sufferers are of the nervous type, and the use of drugs might easily become a necessary daily habit.

The best idea is to have your physician try and locate the cause of the itching skin and treat it accordingly.

Remember while it may not be serious, it is not a normal condition and should be investigated. There is some underlying cause.

State Department Of Health Doings

Is Outlined by Deputy Commissioner Brooks in Health Talk Over Station WGY Friday Night.

The question is often asked, "What does the State Department of Health Do?" Dr. Paul B. Brooks, Deputy State Commissioner of Health, attempted briefly to answer this query in a radio talk which was broadcast Friday evening from Station WGY. As the speaker's time was limited he was able to touch only the "high spots."

"The organization," said Dr. Brooks, "includes about 400 people, and its head is the State Commissioner of Health Its functions are largely those of supervising, advising and assisting local health officials in their work. However, the Public Health Law gives the Commissioner of Health powers which are sufficiently broad so that prompt and vigorous action can be taken in most serious emergencies in which public health is threatened. The department is organized into nine divisions, each in charge of a director.

Protecting General Public.

"The Division of Sanitation deals chiefly with engineering problems, like those relating to public water supplies and sewage disposal Last year it inspected over 500 organized summer camps. It investigates complaints of nuisances where the local authorities need help or fail to act. Probably no other division has to deal with so many puzzling problems requiring careful study and exercise of judgment.

"The Division of Laboratories each year makes between two and three hundred thousand examinations of specimens sent in by physicians. It analyzes water samples and produces several kinds of antitoxins and vaccines; in 1923 it sent out over 48,000 packages of diphtheria antitoxin alone Among its functions is the supervision of the work of about 100 local laboratories. The State Laboratory is said to be one of the best organized and equipped of its kind in the world Every year health workers from many countries and from other states visit this and other divisions of the department.

Interpreting Vital Statistics.

"The Division of Vital Statistics receives, studies and interprets reports of births, deaths and marriages. This work is sometimes referred to as "the bookkeping of humanity."

"The Division of Communicable Diseases receives reports of communicable diseases and advises and assists local health officials in the prevention and control of epidemics.

"The Division of Maternity, Infancy and Child Hygiene specializes in prompting better health among mothers and among children under school age. It carries on extensive educational work, chiefly through demonstrations and literature

"The Division of Public Health Education is responsible for the publications of the department, including a weekly paper called 'Health News,' and 'News releases' going to the newspapers, and arranges for the weekly 'Radio Health Talks.'

Fighting Tuberculosis.

"The Division of Tuberculosis inspects tuberculosis hospitals, holds demonstration clinics to which local physicians bring suspected cases for physical and X-ray examination, and assists generally in the control of tuberculosis.

"The Division of Social Hygiene deals with the prevention of venereal diseases It assists and supervises local clinic, furnishes lecturers to schools and organizations on request, and by various other means does educational work.

"The Division of Public Health Nursing supervises the work of about fifty department field nurses, assists and advises several hundred local public health nurses and aids communities in securing such nurses.

Work in Various Districts.

"An important branch of the organization is a corps of fifteen district state health officers, each in charge of a district of from three to five counties The district officer is the connecting link between the department and the local health officials; he is the 'trouble man' who is called in emergencies, a friend and helper of the honest and conscientious local health officer and probably a 'thorn in the flesh' of some of the diminishing number of uninterested and unefficient ones.

Co-ordinating Activities.

"All the various 'cogs in the machine' pull together when occasion requires; for example, when an epidemic threatens somewhere in the state the Division of Communicable Diseases, laboratory, district officers, engineers and nurses all may have a part to play. Co-ordination of all the activities of so large an organization is not always easy. As a means to this end, a one-hour conference of the 'headquarters staff' of executive officers is held each Monday, and about four times a year the district officers are called in for conference. When you know that about 13,000 letters are received at the department monthly you can see that it is a fairly busy place."

PACKARD

Four Out of Five Are Converts

FOUR out of five who have bought Packard Six cars since January first have given up some other make of car.

While 84 different makes have been taken in, nearly half of the total number, 41%, has been made up of four cars.

These four cars cost from more than $1000 less than a Packard Six to nearly $1000 more.

This is evidence that the Packard Six serves men of moderate means equally with those of wealth.

The beauty, comfort and distinction of the Packard Six and its economy, performance and long life are appreciated by every one who is using judgment in the spending of his motor car money.

150 YEARS AGO

The Origin of the U. S. A.

By Jonathan A. Rawson, Jr.

TEN COWS BECOME HOWE'S.

Revolutionary War news was making aplenty 150 years ago today. Benedict Arnold and his "starveless Continentals" finally arrived opposite Quebec in their expedition against Canada after the frightful hardships already described in these stories. John Dickinson took instructions from the Pennsylvania Assembly to that colony's delegates in the Continental Congress to utterly reject any propositions that might lead to a separation from Great Britain or to a change in the colony's form of government, yet at the same session the assembly voted $0,000 pounds in paper money for military preparations against Great Britain, also, on November 9, 1775, the Continental Congress ordered the raising of two battalions of marines, to be considered as a part of the Continental army, but to be "good seamen or so acquainted with maritime affairs as to be able to serve with advantage at sea when required."

But the great military operation of that day was at Boston. Separating Boston from Cambridge at that time was a body of water into which Lechmere Point projected from the Cambridge side. General Howe's British army was besieged in Boston by General Washington's American army with its headquarters in Cambridge. Food was becoming scarce for the British. The supply from England was threatened by little armed boats sent out by Washington as commerce destroyers. The patriot army saw to it that there should be no supply from New England farms. But roundabout Boston were many fertile pastures where cattle grazed and one of these pastures was on Lechmere Point, in no man's land between the two armies.

On this day 400 British sallied forth in boats under the protection of a warship and floating batteries, to help themselves to the cows on Lechmere Point. Further assistance was rendered to the British by a battery on Charlestown Neck, where the Battle of Bunker Hill had been fought. Warned by all these big guns of what was happening, Washington sent a force down to the Point to repel the raiders. It was high tide at the time and to reach the Point the Americans had to cross a causeway in water nearly up to their waists.

All the king's men were about to get into their boats for their return when the Americans arrived on the Point. There was a lively skirmish, the end of which was that the British managed to get away with ten captured cows. The price they paid for these captives was two men killed, while the American casualties were two men wounded by grape shot from the British ships. The great significance of this little affair to Washington, with his comments on the conduct of his ragged Continentals in the engagement, will be related in tomorrow's story.

ALCOHOLIC DEATHS.

Decline in Nine Months But Alcohol Increases Other Causes.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 9.—While deaths from alcoholism have declined during the first nine months of 1925 among the more than sixteen million industrial policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, deaths from cirrhosis of the liver, most of which are of alcoholic origin, have increased, according to the Company's Statistical Bulletin. The Bulletin says:

"Alcoholism caused 356 deaths during the first nine months of 1925 corresponding to a death rate of 2.8 per 100,000. This may be compared with 342 deaths, and a rate of 3.2 during the same period of 1924. Deaths from cirrhosis of the liver numbered 822, with a death rate of 6.6 per 100,000, as compared with 673 deaths and a rate of 6.3 during the same period last year.

"Twenty-one deaths were due to poisoning by wood or denatured alcohol, against 13 during the same months of 1924.

"Since January 1, 1922, a period of three years and nine months, alcoholism, exclusive of wood and denatured alcohol poisonings, has caused the deaths of 1,528 industrial policyholders. Of these 1,514 deaths occurred in the United States and only 14 in Canada."

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

GIRAFFES

"We have cousins," said Teddy Three-Horned Giraffe.

"We have, indeed," said Jack Three-Horned Giraffe.

"But so have others cousins," added Teddy.

"So they have," added Jack.

"I wish you wouldn't always agree with me," said Teddy.

"I won't, if you don't want me to," said Jack.

"There, there, there," said Teddy.

"What do you mean by that?" asked Jack.

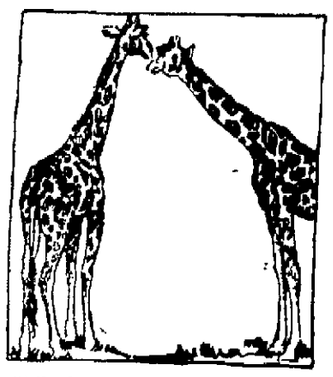
"Oh, dear," said Teddy.

"Why do you say, 'Oh, dear'? asked Jack. "I'm not a deer, but a giraffe."

"I know it, I know it," said Teddy sadly. "I didn't mean to call you a dear or a deer—for one means something sweet and affectionate and the other is an animal. I just said, 'Oh, dear,' as an expression, or a saying.

"I meant when I said that, and I also meant when I said, 'there, there, there,' that you even won't agree with me if I don't want you to, and that is as bad as if you did agree with me.

"So I see that I will have to do all the talking so you won't get the chance to agree. I like to have creatures take opposite sides and think different. If everyone thought alike there would be no such thing as talk.



"I Can't Help Agreeing With You."

Some one would say that it was a nice day and just the day for a walk, and then some one else would say he thought so, too, and that would be the end of the conversation."

"Unless they went for a walk, and they would walk instead of talk," said Jack.

"Ha, ha, ha," laughed Teddy. "That is the first time you haven't agreed with me. I like that. But I was going to tell you that our cousins have different names, such as the five-horned giraffes, the two-horned giraffes, and others like us in many ways.

"I do do how glad I am that I am in the zoo for where we come from, over in East Africa, they don't care how they kill us. They're just crazy enough to kill for the sake of killing but we're safe in the zoo, and, oh, how glad I am."

"Well," said Jack, "I hate to agree with you, as I know you don't like me to, but I can't help agreeing with you that I am glad that I'm in the zoo and can't be killed!

"Perhaps you won't mind me agreeing with you about that."

"Oh, no," Teddy. "That's different."

Mr. Giraffe, in his yard, was talking to his son. "Once," he said, "there was a story written. There may have been more, but I am not sure."

"Oh, I think there have been many, many stories written and that the world is full of books," said Young Giraffe.

"I have my doubts about that," said Mr. Giraffe. "I don't see books around, only once in a great, great while some one comes to the zoo carrying a book.

"And I have thought that that must be the book in which was the story of which I am speaking. There can't be books and books and the world can't be full of them, for the zoo is a part of the world and I am sure there are no books around here. There are houses and cages and yards and paths, and driveways, and walks and benches. There are places where they keep food, and there is water to wash out our homes, but books—oh, no, I have not seen books around."

"Maybe there aren't books around our homes," said Master Giraffe, "but I am sure there are lots of them, for I have heard children speak of this and that story, and of something they read here, and of another thing they read there."

"Don't pay any attention to them," said Mr. Giraffe. "You might become a bright giraffe and that would never do. We are naturally stupid and it is so nice to be stupid. It doesn't require any thought or effort or work. But I know there was one story written once and I have always worried about it.

"It was about a giraffe having a sore throat and it was so bad because his throat was so long and there was so much to be sore. It has always worried me."

"Don't let it worry you," said Young Giraffe. "That's a story I've heard many times even in my short life. It's people trying to be funny. It is about as senseless to try to be funny and not succeed very well as it is to be stupid as we are."

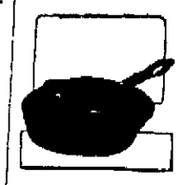
SUCH GOOD THINGS

Most cooks find the breakfast menu the most difficult to escape monotony. The following tasty dish will be appreciated:



Cuban Eggs.—Cook together five minutes, one-fourth of a cupful of sausage meat, and one teaspoonful of grated onion. Add to the pan six eggs beaten lightly, one-fourth o a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper and stir until the eggs are creamy. Pour over slices or rounds of buttered toast on a platter and garnish with slices of fresh tomato sprinkled with chopped green pepper.

Oatmeal Bread.—Boil enough potatoes to make two cupfuls when mashed—save the water in which they were cooked—adding enough water to make a quart. Pour this over the potatoes, add two tablespoonfuls of shortening, one tablespoonful of sugar and one of salt. Put over the fire and when boiling add two cupfuls of rolled oats; let boil five minutes, then remove and cool. When lukewarm, add one and one-half yeast cakes dissolved in one-fourth of a cupful of warm milk, a teaspoonful of soda and two quarts of flour. Mix until smooth and let rise over night. In the morning mold into three loaves and bake one and one-quarter hours in a moderate oven.

Terrapin Chicken.—Chop together two chicken livers cooked, two cooked eggs and mix with two cupfuls of chopped cooked chicken. Season with salt, pepper, nutmeg. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour, one cupful of chicken stock or cream. Cook until smooth, add the chopped mixture, cover and simmer for ten minutes. Before serving add a yolk of egg beaten with two tablespoonfuls of cream and one teaspoonful of lemon juice; stir this into the hot mixture and pour into timbale cases or crustades. Garnish with parsley.

Serve a cottage pudding or plain cornstarch pudding with a butterscotch sauce made of browned flour, butter, brown sugar, a little molasses and vinegar with water. Good with ice cream.

Frankness of the modern girl has at least accomplished one good work. We no longer hear women's underthings spoken of as unmentionables.

"Understand that Jones went out on a party the other day and got ptomaine poisoning."

"Do you suppose he left the food in tin too long?"

"Well, it was laying in the back seat of his Ford all afternoon."

I Held Her Hand.

I held her hand one night in June,
Beneath a silvered lover's moon.
Upon the wave-washed sand;
Her eyes like diamonds looked in mine.
My heart was filled with love divine,
The while I held her hand.

I held her hand; I spoke the word,
That only waves and breezes heard.
And clouds of fleecy lace:
Out there upon the beach's sand
I stole a kiss, and held her hand—
Or she'd have slapped my face.

"John," his wife asked when he got home at 3 o'clock in the morning, "where have you been?"

"In conferensh," he replied, and she hadn't the heart to ask him what had been accomplished.

Insects on House Plants

There are many sorts of insects affecting house plants, and roses in particular, mainly sucking insects. They are controlled by sousing or dipping the plants in tobacco preparations and strong soap suds. Several sousings are usually necessary at intervals of a few days.

A Simple Way to lighten cloudy teeth

This remarkable new way, urged by dental authorities, also Firms the Gums... removes the grimy film that clouds and hides the natural beauty of your teeth.

THAT dull, "off-color" teeth can be lightened amazingly, even given dazzling whiteness, now is an accepted dental fact. You can work a transformation in your mouth.

Leading dentists now tell us how to clear grimy teeth, and, at the same time, give firmness and healthy color to delicate gums. A new method that supplants old-type dentifrices. It removes the grimy film that covers teeth and hides their natural beauty.

Just run your tongue across your teeth. And you will feel that film. It is the great enemy of pretty teeth and healthy gums.

It clings to the teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It forms a breeding place for germs. It lays your gums open to bacterial attack, your teeth open to decay. Those germs, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Old-time methods failed in successfully fighting film. So ugly teeth were common. You must remove it. Ordinary brushing won't do it satisfactorily. Under it are the clear, whiter teeth you envy in others.

Now modern science has perfected an effective film combatant, called Pepsodent. It acts to curdle film, then removes it—no harsh grit dangerous to enamel. It firms and protects gums; beautifies teeth quickly and correctly.

Many Upsets In Grid Games

Dartmouth, University of Washington and University of Alabama Remain In Prominence As Result of Upsets Over The Week End.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 9.—Meet a Dartmouth man today and he will gently but firmly clasp you by the unguarded buttonhole and tell you that the Green proved itself the greatest football team in the country by running up 62 points on Cornell. Meet a University of Washington or a University of Alabama product and they will have a story of much the same plausibility about their particular teams.

As an aftermath of a week end that witnessed the biggest upsets in recent years, this trio remained as the only entries of prominence with real claim to national distinction unless one wishes to include Missouri and Tulane.

Michigan, only a week before hailed as the absolute best, went down before Northwestern. Iowa, another conference leader was defeated by Wisconsin, Syracuse, an undefeated eastern outfit, could only get a tie with Ohio Wesleyan, Drake defeated Nebraska by two touchdowns. Princeton ran up 36 points on Harvard, Dartmouth absolutely annihilated Cornell, the Army almost finished second to Davis-Elkins and Fordham beat Holy Cross.

The defeats of Michigan, Chicago and Iowa left the big ten situation in a maze of contradictions. The defeats of Boston College and Cornell removed a pair from the unbeaten list that probably didn't belong, anyhow.

The list, by the way, includes Dartmouth, Colgate, Syracuse, Alabama, Washington, Missouri and Tulane, among others. Washington established itself at the head of the pack on the coast by defeating Stanford and although the California Bear still is to be reckoned with, there is no doubt that, at this moment, the Washington team is the recognized leader of the far west.

Dartmouth holds a similar position in the east, the middlewest no longer has a reputable trail blazer, Missouri is the headliner in the district beyond and Tulane and Alabama rule the south.

Comparative scores were ever a snare and a delusion. Except in the south and far west, Saturday, was such a poor day for football that one might be justified in throwing out the defeats of Michigan and Iowa. Here in the east, for example, Yale continues to impress everyone with its great power and versatility, yet the Blue cannot be rated at the top because of its early season defeat by Pennsylvania.

Perhaps today Yale is the best team in the country; perhaps tomorrow Michigan will be. Frankly, the collegiate situation is getting a trifle out of hand.

SCANLON TOOK THIRD PLACE AT SYRACUSE

John Scanlon, the Kingston High School track captain after competing at Syracuse, Saturday in the state-wide cross-country run meet brought home honor for the Maroon and White by taking third place in this championship meet before a field of 75 other high school harriers.

The state championship was won by Roland Ritchie of Schenectady High, second place being taken by Anthony Gaeta of Niagara Falls.

Scanlon crossed the tape close behind these two men, winning for himself the third place medal. The course was slightly longer than the sectional paths throughout the state, the large procession covering a course of three miles.

Medals were awarded to the men who finished in the first seven places. Three other K. H. S. runners were entered in the meet but failed to win a major place.

MARANVILLE BECOMES PROPERTY OF BROOKLYN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 9.—Walter "Rabbit" Maranville once regarded as the greatest shortstop in baseball, has become the property of the Brooklyn Dodgers, it was announced today by officials of the club.

The Rabbit was secured at the waiver price from Chicago Cubs, whom he managed last season until demoted near the end of the campaign.

Marriott, young third baseman of the Boston Braves, also has been secured by Brooklyn at the waiver price, it was announced.

SIKI WAS AMUSING TO NEW YORK FANS

Always Gave Boxing Patrons in Gotham Their Money's Worth.

Siki, although he fared none too well in American rings, was always a drawing card. This was because the fans knew that, in one way or another, they were going to get their money's worth when he entered the ring. When Siki felt like fighting he could fight. When he felt like clowning he was a vaudeville show in himself.

Siki had plenty of ring ability and matchless courage. He could hit and he had no small measure of cleverness. He was a far better fighter than many of the men who won decisions over him in American rings. He might have gone high in his profession had he taken the game seriously. But he trained on the cup that cheers and he did his road work along the primrose path.

Siki's star first flashed across the fistic firmament when he knocked out Georges Carpentier in Paris and won the light heavyweight championship of the world. There was quite an uproar over that affair, the claim being made that Siki had contracted to take a dive and instead double-crossed the Frenchman.

Immediately after that fight the Battler got his first taste of high life. For weeks he was the worshiped idol of the Parisian boulevards and the Montmartre. He was wined and dined until the Paris police called with a patrol wagon and gave him his first of many such rides.

Siki and his money were soon parted and he began to look around for another fight. At this psychological second Mike McTigue landed in Paris and suggested to the Battler that it would be a nice thing if they could fight (for Siki's title) in Dublin on St Patrick's day.

"If there's anything that goes big in Dublin on St Patrick's day it's a fight," explained Mike, ordering up another quart of sparkling Burgundy. "Yes, sir, they'll pay big to see a good fight in Dublin on the 17th of March —and they love you black boys over there." Mike didn't know it, but he was hanging up a world's record for pugilistic strategy. It has never been equaled.

Battling Siki accepted—guileless child of the jungle—and McTigue won. How could he have lost—an Irishman fighting a black man in Dublin on St. Patrick's day?

Missouri Team Strong

The "Tigers" of Columbia, Mo., promise to be stronger than ever this season. Many of the old regulars are back this year and experts predict that the "Show-me" boys will have one of the strongest teams in the West. The photograph shows Sam Whiteman, halfback and captain.

Oeschger's Masterpiece Recalled by Retirement

Joe Oeschger's passing from major league realms brings remembrance of the greatest feat in his career—and the most remarkable of its kind in the game's history.

On May 1, 1920, Oeschger, then inboring for the Braves, and Leon Cadore of the Dodgers, indulged in a 26-inning tie combat—the lengthiest struggle in major league annals.

The Braves scored a run in the fourth and the Dodgers tied it up in the fifth. From then on until the game was ended by darkness, Oeschger and Cadore continued on the mound, battling for triumph. Cadore was hit freely throughout the extra innings, but the Braves couldn't convert their safeties into runs. Oeschger seemed to grow stronger as the game progressed and turned the Dodgers back hitless from the 17th inning until the end.

Oeschger, some time later, became a member of the Dodgers and a teammate of his bitter rival of that day. Cadore passed out of the majors a year or so ago.

That "pay-day smile" when you smoke P. A.

WHEN a fellow's happy as a spring robin, he's just got to show it. Face lighted up like a sample house. Look at those jimmy-pipers all around you. You can't tell whether they've just got a raise, or whether they've been mentioned in a rich uncle's will.

But here's the secret: They've discovered Prince Albert! Just you tuck a neat wad of P. A. into the muzzle of that little old jimmy-pipe and make fire with a match. Man, alive. Here's tobacco as IS tobacco. Mellow. Mild. A win in every draw.

No other tobacco is like Prince Albert. Cool and sweet and fragrant. Not a nip or a scorch in a barrel of it. The Prince Albert process cuts out bite and parch, and develops a tobacco flavor that has solace and satisfaction written all over it.

Quality tobacco and no mistake. Quantity too! There are TWO full ounces in every tidy red tin. (Look at the revenue stamp.) Get together now —you and your jimmy-pipe and Prince Albert. Step around the corner and tell the man you want a tidy red tin of P. A. Then you're set for real smoke-sport.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

Look at the U. S. revenue stamp—there are TWO full ounces in every tin.

RICKARD WILL NOT PAY BIG PURSES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 9—Due notice was served upon leading boxers by Tex Rickard today that their extravagant demands for big purses no longer would be recognized by the promoter in making up his shows for the new garden.

"I lost about $35,000 on the Slattery-Berlenbach and Walker-Shade matches last summer," Rickard declared. "The first of these drew about $100,000 and the second about $150,000. There is no reason why a promoter should lose money when the gate receipts run so high. The boxers simply will have to moderate their demands, that's all."

DARTMOUTH WILL PLAY CHICAGO SATURDAY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 9.—Dartmouth's unbeaten eleven faced what is generally regarded here as its severest test of the season this week in journeying to Chicago for the season's finale Saturday with Alonzo Stagg's big Maroon team.

The squad will leave Hanover on Wednesday, step off at Flint, Mich., for a workout on the following day and reach its destination on Friday.

Senators Would Acquit Blazer

Or Send Him to Asylum for the Killing of His Daughter—Opinion of Twelve U. S. Senators in Sensational Murder Case.

(Copyright, 1925, International News Service.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Nov. 9.—If Dr. Harold E. Blazer, Colorado's "mercy slayer," were being tried before a jury of United States senators instead of a jury of Araphoe farmers, he would be acquitted or put away in an asylum for taking the life of his legless, armless, mindless, husk of a daughter.

The Blazer case has aroused intense interest in the capital because of the many intricate questions of law and science raised in the case.

Twelve members of the senate were picked at random today around the capital and asked to state what their attitude in the Blazer case would be if they were on the jury—in other words constitute a senatorial jury.

Of these twelve, three stood for unconditional acquittal, five voted to sustain the defense's plea that the aged doctor was out of his mind when he chloroformed his idiot child and four voted merely a verdict of guilty.

Drafted for service on this unique jury were several former governors of states, several famous prosecutors, several great trial lawyers, business men and farmers. Most of them were fathers.

Only two declined to permit publication of their names.

The Verdict.

The verdict was:

For conviction: Senators Francis E. Warren, Republican, of Wyoming, Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat of Montana, Guy D. Goff, Republican of West Virginia and Thomas F. Bayard, Democrat of Delaware (4).

For acquittal: Senators Lynn J. Frazier, Republican of North Dakota, Cole Blease, Democrat of South Carolina and Senator "A" who won renown as an administrator of justice on the bench of a mid-western state (3.)

Congress May Decide Issue.

In expressing their opinions about Colorado's sensational murder case, the senatorial jurors indicated the trial has raised an issue which some day may be carried to the floors of congress. This is the question whether a state or national agency should be created to destroy humane derelict at birth. One juror, Senator Frazier, said he believed some authority should be established to determine this weighty problem.

Opinions of Senators.

Those senators voting for a conviction, contended the armless, legless, deaf and dumb idiot, Helen Blazer, was still a human being. To kill such an unfortunate after deliberate premeditation, they held, was as criminal as to kill any one else.

The other jurors, either voting for acquittal or for the insanity plea, said circumstances of the Blazer case did not justify punishment of the father as a murderer. Rather, they said, such a victim of circumstances should be placed in an asylum for his few remaining years.

The opinions of the senatorial jurors were as follows:

Senator Warren, former governor of Wyoming, and dean of congress: "If Dr. Blazer killed his daughter deliberately and with premeditation, as indicated in press reports, he ought to be hung for murder."

Cannot Justify Murder.

Senator Walsh, noted Teapot Dome prosecutor, and a famous constitutional lawyer:

"I cannot justify murder, whatever the circumstance may be. It took Dr. Blazer too long—32 years—to decide it was his duty to take his daughter's life. Once we tolerate that sort of thing, here is no telling where to draw the line or what degree of deformity there should be to make the act of murder justifiable or even excusable. One easily recalls many brilliant minds which would have been lost to the world had not the wisdom of men or the creator himself set the seal of condemnation on murder generally."

Senator Goff, former assistant attorney general and once a prosecuting attorney in Wisconsin:

"It is not so much the fact that a physical body was destroyed as that opportunity was denied to a human soul. I would vote for conviction."

Guilty If Deliberate.

Senator Bayard, one of Delaware's greatest lawyers and father of five children: "We all recall families who have had to bear the burden of caring for crippled children. If I found that Dr. Blazer killed his daughter deliberately, as indicated in newspaper reports, I would vote that he be punished according to law. Otherwise you would be giving a man the right to take human life at his own inclination."

Acquit Under Circumstances.

Senator Frazer, former governor of North Dakota, farmer father of five children:

"While I don't approve of such an action generally, I think there ought to be a state or government authority to take care of such unfortunates. In the Blazer case, I think he ought to be acquitted under the circumstances."

Senator Blease, former governor of South Carolina, and a noted criminal lawyer:

"They ought to acquit Dr. Blazer."

Senator "A", mid-western Republican, famous as a liberal and father of three daughters:

"I would vote to acquit the father. Its a really serious question because there are times when death comes as a blessing. I don't think though that I would vote for a law to put such unfortunates out of their misery, because there would be no way to prevent its abuse."

Senator Wheeler, noted as a prosecutor and father of six children:

Believe Blazer Insane.

"From what I have read on the Blazer case in newspaper reports, I believe the father is insane and should be confined in an asylum."

Senator Harris, former banker of one daughter:

"A father who could murder his daughter is either deprived or insane. He should either be hung or committed to an asylum. In the Blazer case, I think newspaper reports indicate the father is insane."

Senator McMaster, former governor of South Dakota; once a farmer:

"The frightful mental ordeal undergone by the father in caring for his daughter all these years, in my judgment rendered his mind unbalanced. I should ajudge him insane."

Senator Schall, criminal lawyer and himself blinded by an electric shock:

"The action of Dr. Balzer itself indicates what the verdict should be. He is insane and should be sent to an asylum."

Senator "B", a national leader in independent thought and formerly one of the greatest criminal prosecutors in the West:

"If people's lives are to be taken because they are not believed to have a soul, it would be better to let the state supervise the destruction. From press reports of the Blazer case, I should say the father is insane and would so vote if I were on his jury."

When Deer Drop Antlers

The antlers of North American deer are usually dropped in March, but occasionally in February. They are shed close to the animal's head. The root or pedicle exposed is a tough disk of bone belonging to the frontal bone of the skull. No blood flows during this process. The antlers are renewed in about three or four months.

Queer Animal

The fur of the sea otter is of a deep brown color, with a soft, woolly part near the skin which gives the pelt great value. The animal has a body that looks something like a seal, partly because the hind part of the body ends with flat, oar-like feet that are like the flippers of the seal. A sea otter weighs from 80 to 100 pounds.

Probe Death of Mrs. Lindsley

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 9.—As the body of Mrs. Margaret Woodruff Lindsley of Mexico was being lowered into a grave this morning, Oswego county authorities stopped the ceremonies to investigate reports that death was from unnatural causes. Mrs. Lindsley's estate is estimated at $250,000.

Her husband Dr. Albert C. Lindsley was questioned by District Attorney Harry M. Stacy. Other witnesses are to be summoned. The body was taken to Syracuse and vital organs removed after which it was returned to Mexico where the interrupted funeral services were completed.

Town gossip in Mexico is responsible for the action of the authorities. Acute dilation of the heart was the cause of death given by Dr. W. H Kidder of Oswego who signed the certificate. The Oswego county coroner's examination bore out the physician, but still prosecutors were not satisfied.

District Attorney Stacey refuses to give information which prompted his action, nor would he discuss what the investigation has revealed. He said that so far the physicians report of a natural death has not been disproven.

The dead woman was the widow of Norman Woodruff who left large homes in real estate. Mrs Woodruff married Dr. Lindsley some time ago. It is reported that he was the sole beneficiary under the will.

In Memoriam.

In sad and loving memory of my darling mother, Ida Winne Ronnenberg, who departed this life November 9, 1924.

When the evening shades are falling
And I'm sitting all alone,
In my heart there comes a longing
If you only could came back home.
The blow was great, the shock severe
I did not think your death so near.
I saw you suffer, I heard your sighs,
With aching heart and weeping eyes,
I saw you sinking hour by hour,
Yet could not stop death's awful power.
But now you calmly sleep at rest
All pain, all aches, all suffering past,
Though from you I had to part
Your memory still dwells within my heart.
Never to be forgotten. SON.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 9.—A jolt was administered to the stock market and the cotton market today, resulting in general declines. The shrinkage in cotton prices was due to the addition of 160,000 bales of cotton to the government's estimates of "probably yield" but stocks declined as the result of a rush to take profits and the calling of loans to make up a $7,943,000 deficit in the reserves of the New York Clearing House banks.

In many cases opening prices were lowest for the day, though some of the more active industrials and motor shares lost four to ten points before there was an indication of a recovery. The market stood the test quite well, and bullish forces behind the current advance in prices, were not ready to relinquish control.

Sales in the first three hours aggregated 1,500,000 shares, General Motors, Dupont and other bullish standard-bearers were reactionary and the independent oil stocks were the most dependable leaders in the forward movement.

Call money moved up to 5 per cent when calling of loans reached a total of about $15,000,000, but bankers do not look for any permanent hardening of money rates.

Reports that the railroad companies were about to place large orders for cars and locomotives, with Pennsylvania railroad's quota of $50,000,000 led to favorable consideration of the equipment stocks. Baldwin Locomotive jumped 5½ points to 131½ in active trading. A few of the well known independent oil stocks were consistently strong from the start, rising in the maxumum of two points.

SEES OVERTHROW OF DE RIVERA'S GOVERNMENT.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Barcelona, Spain, Nov. 9.—Overthrow of General Primo De Rivera's government by a coup d'etat was foreseen as a possibility in the sudden, secret departure for Madrid of Brigadier General Lopes Ochoa, according to information from an authoritative source today.

General Rivera, who left for Morocco this morning, issued orders to police to scour the hotels and boarding houses for General Ochoa and to arrest him if they find him.

General Ochoa is one of the youngest, most energetic of the Spanish generals, being only 43 years old. He is reported to be the leading spirit of the youthful element in the army dissatisfied with the Directory government.

SCHOOL DAYS

AN ABBREVIATED STORY

THE LEAD PENCIL

TWO days ago I was a beautiful, brown pencil, hale and hearty and of full stature, with my name, "Write-easy, No. 6," printed on my sleek side in letters of purest gold. I hadn't a single care in the world, and my heart was full of love for all human beings—for was it not to humans that I owed my lovely shape, my long sturdy bar of unbroken lead and my soft, firm wood?

Today I am a miserable abandoned stump without even a point. My gold name has been cruelly hacked off, even to the capital W.

For a woman tried to sharpen me. If I had been wise I would have struggled out of her hands as soon as she borrowed her husband's penknife—struggled out of her hands and slipped down a crack to an eternal dark oblivion that at least would not have robbed me of my shape.

At the first inch of wood and lead that she hacked off, she said: "Something must be the matter with the wood."

At the second inch she said: "Something must be the matter with the lead."

At the third inch she said: "Something must be the matter with the knife."

At that I fainted from pain and humiliation, and awoke a scraggy cast-off stump of my former self.

And a confirmed woman hater.

WHO SAID

"I am not a Virginian but an American."

HAD Patrick Henry lived 30 years later than he did, would we have clung to his assertion that he was a citizen of the United States, rather than of Virginia?

It was on this question of whether the citizens of the United States were citizens of the nation or of the state in which they lived that the Civil war was fought and finally decided in favor of those holding to the theory here enunciated by Patrick Henry.

Of course, Patrick Henry lived before the real development of the nation into states. They were but loosely organized colonies before the Revolutionary war and their structure had not changed greatly before death claimed the renowned orator. Had Patrick Henry lived later in the history of his country it is quite likely that his intense love for Virginia would have caused him to alter the declaration quoted above.

Patrick Henry was born in Virginia in 1736. He was given a good education and in 1760 he was admitted to the bar of his native state. Henry's ability soon became evident. No other public speaker of his time could surpass him in his hold upon his audience and his impassioned addresses played a prominent part in lining up the colonists against the British. He was one of the most bitter opponents of the Stamp Act and it was his repeated speeches against it that made its enforcement practically impossible.

The one declaration best remembered of this orator is the famous one: "I know not what course others may take; but as for me give me liberty or give me death."

Patrick Henry died in 1799.—Wayne D. McMurray.

Is life worth living? I think that question has been answered for good and all. The cost has been more than doubled, and we still hang on.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SAVORY FOODS

A FLANK steak, when carefully prepared, makes a most appetizing dish. Pound the meat until the fibers are well broken, rub with three tablespoonfuls of butter or cooking oil; when the oil is absorbed fry in a hot iron frying pan. Place the browned meat in a casserole, rinse out the pan with two tablespoonfuls of boiling water and pour it over the meat. Add one bayleaf, one clove of garlic, two teaspoonfuls of salt, two tablespoonfuls each of minced celery, green pepper and carrot. Add two cupfuls of boiling water and in the last half hour of cooking six medium-sized potatoes. Cook two and one-half hours. Thicken with a tablespoonful of flour mixed with a little cold water.

Savory Casserole of Mutton.

Cut a slice of mutton from the middle part of the leg of a yearling—have the slice two inches thick. Remove the bone and fill the cavity with minced onion or celery. Dredge with flour and salt and pepper. Prepare in the bottom of casserole a rich gravy of one cupful of brown stock, one-half cupful of currant jelly, a dozen chopped olives, six peppercorns, three whole cloves, one tablespoonful of lemon juice. Thicken when boiling with one tablespoonful of flour mixed with a little water, to a paste. Lay into this the round of mutton, spread the top with beef marrow, cover the casserole and bake for an hour and a half in a moderate oven.

Chicken and Spinach Soup.

Wash and pick over two pounds of spinach and cook in one-half cupful of butter until tender. Add one-half cupful of flour, mixed with salt and pepper to season. When thick rub through a colander and add two quarts of chicken stock. When it comes to a boil serve in cups garnished with whipped cream.

IS IT BEDLOW?

ANY one who knows the Statue of Liberty, as Bartholdi's statue in New York harbor is called, probably recalls that it is built upon a small piece of land known as Bedloe's Island. The usual spelling is Bedloe, though it was named for a former owner whose name was spelled Bedlow. It is said that the difference of spelling was due to a little error in a certain document recording the sale of this island.

The first of the Bedlows here was Isaac Bedlow, a native of Holland and son of George Bedlow, physician to William Prince of Orange. Isaac emigrated from Leyden, Holland, in 1650, and made his home in New Amsterdam. Five years he served as alderman of the city of New Amsterdam and acquired by purchase the island that bears his name.

A descendant of this Isaac Bedlow was William Bedlow who was postmaster of the first United States post office in New York city. This was in 1783. His wife was Catherine, daughter of Colonel Henry Rutgers. Henry Bedlow, a member of the same old New York family, was one time mayor of Newport with an interesting record as United States diplomatist.

WARNER—This is a usual English name derived from a one-time popular first name, Warner.

K.H.S. Grid Team Again Blanked

Peekskill Trounces Local High Eleven 39 to 0 at Peekskill Saturday—Fast Backs Easily Plunged Their Way to Victory.

Peekskill High Schools much heavier eleven, led by an able general, Foster, who was ever displaying an all-around brilliancy for his outfit easily smashed their way past the K. H. S. squadron for a 38 to 0 decision in the down-river city Saturday afternoon.

Foster the small quarterback of the Peekskill outfit was the main prop of the winners, repeatedly cutting loose for gains and standing out as the star of the affair along with his fellow back, Murphy. These two backs and Captain Ward all roped in two touchdowns apiece, making the six tallies of the affair. Murphy made the first touchdown on a line plunge after Foster had advanced the leather thirty yards on an end sweep.

The Peekskill team employed the huddle system and made the major part of their yardage on line bucking tactics. The winning team showed up very weak on the passing warfare, only completing one spiral during the tilt. But where the Peekskill crew was weak on aerial attacks they easily regained lost ground on line plunging plays.

But although winning decisively the down-river team made only six more first downs than the Maroon and White eleven, Peekskill making 15 and K. H. S. completing 9. The local team played a good passing game, Coach O'Leary's charges executed aerial attacks for four of their nine first downs.

In the second period Murphy started the march toward Kingston's chalkline with a twenty yard charge, being dropped by Leverett. Foster then showed the pigskin ahead the remaining eight yards for the second tally. The second touchdown this period was chaperoned over by Murphy who intercepted a pass and broke away for twenty yards.

Both teams were on even terms the third period for retaining possession of the ball, the Peekskill outfit often committing fumbles and the Maroon and White men taking advanage of the misplays and seizing the leather. But the fumbling backs finally managed to escort the oval across. Murphy opened the avenue for a tally with a ten yard run after which Ward readily rushed the ball over the final three yards. Waldron kicked the placement for the seventh point.

Ward and Foster each shot the ball across for touchdowns the latter period. Murphy cut down twenty yards this last period, being brought down by Gerber. Foster also run off twelve yards before being stopped by Johnson.

Vic Johnson showed up well in the fullback berth being unusually accurate in aiming spirals and using his toe to good advantage. Johnson averaged thirty five yards on his en time punting prowess during the affair. The local fullback along with Leverett and Svirsky was especially alert in bringing enemy backs to earth.

Leverett and Shurter, the pair of local halfbacks were both slightly injured during the affair. Leverett had two of his ribs broken in making a tackle and Shurter was injured about the head.

First National Motor Bus Show

Will Be Held in Detroit From November 16 to 21, Characterized as New Landmark in the History of Transportation in America.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9.—"A new landmark in the history of transportation in America."

Such, in brief, is the tenor of a statement from the Commercial Vehicle Department of the American Automobile Association today, calling attention to the far-reaching significance of the first National Motor Bus Show to be held in Detroit, November 16-21.

That it will require nearly all the 200,000 square feet of the floor space in the mammoth Gridley Hall to exhibit the busses and bus equipment which will be brought there by manufacturers for display before the bus operators from all parts of the United States and Canada who will attend, is itself ample proof that the bus has come to stay and that it already occupies a commanding position as a national transportation agency, the A. A. A. statement declares.

"The jitney has gone and the high step, top-heavy, curtained type of bus of a few years ago has yielded place to a vehicle which, from the standpoint of comfort and luxury, leaves nothing to be desired.

"With the development of highways which today, in point of mileage, amount to 2,800,000 of which 470,000 are improved, together with the huge strides in the mechanical design of the bus itself, this means of rapid transportation has gathered to itself a public patronage that is now firmly established and puts it among the foremost of the permanent public utilities of the country.

"When it is considered that there are 60,000 busses in the passenger-carrying business in the United States today, that they carried over 3,000,000,000 passengers in 1924 and that together with the value of other property necessary to their operation they represent an investment of over $296,000,000, the importance of the industry from the public standpoint can be readily appreciated."

The coming show affords the first opportunity for the industry to show the people on a large scale what it has to offer. It is expected to become an annual feature so as to give all concerned an opportunity to see the immense possibilities in the development of highway transportation.

Coincident with the holding of the bus show, there will be held in Detroit several other conventions including that of the Michigan Highway Transportation Association, the American Association of State Highway Officials and the Society of Motor Transportation Engineers.

The Bus Operators Committee on legislation for interstate commerce will have its second meeting at Detroit, Tuesday, November 17. This committee, which it nationally representative of the bus operators of the country, held its first meeting at A. A. A. National Headquarters in Washington, November 2-3.

Heart Tag Day Netted $572.66

Kingston folk opened their hearts and purses on Saturday to help the destitute women with children and other unfortunates in care of the Volunteers of America by contributing the sum of $572.66 to that worthy cause. Every one connected with the affair was deeply grateful to all who in any way helped make the day successful.

A statement issued by the organization's representative says: "To the city officials, the newspapers, the merchants who furnished the incentives for the children's efforts as well as to Mrs. G. F. Rice and Miss Elsie Phillips capable leadership full credit should be given; neither must the public's generosity in patronizing the youthful workers be omitted. From early in the morning until late in the afternoon each of the girls and boys played the merry game of "competition" for the prizes and movie tickets and at the close of the "contest" it was found that the down town prizes were won by Helen Short, first, who collected $25.89. The second was won by Helen Hudson, who had $14.68. Helen Myers had $13.59 and received third prize. The fourth and fifth prizes were won by Bessie Mantino and Sophia Dornbush.

The other children were made happy with movie passes.

The names of the prize winners in the uptown district have not been compiled as yet.

200 DAYS TO JUNE.

Day When West Point "Plebes" Act Like Other People.

West Point, Nov. 9.—One of the many customs and traditions of the corps of cadets of the United States Military Academy will occur in the Cadet Mess Hall at dinner on November 11. This particular day represents for the cadets, Two Hundred Days to June, that great mile-stone in every cadet's life, particularly for the First Class, who graduate, and the Plebe Class, who are accorded recognition, and who, on this particular occasion of Two Hundred Days to June, are granted the rare privilege of making speeches at the evening meal.

Ordinarily, the Plebes are not expected to take part in the conversation at meals; except, of course, to ask for food, but on this particular night, they are given full sway, and, in either a written or an oral speech, they can lampoon or lambast to their heart's content upperclassmen at their table, and this without fear of censure or blame, either then or later.

It is the Plebe's night, and they certainly do enjoy it. Many are the upperclassmen, then, who blush for being told frankly about some of their petty weaknesses or vanities. But it is all in fun, and so taken, and every one—upperclassmen and Plebes—knows that it lasts but one meal. But it is one of the few odd times during the year, that the Plebe can talk to upperclassmen with impunity.

WALLKILL.

Wallkill, Nov. 9.—At a recent meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Plattekill M. E. Church held at the home of Mrs. Edward Pickens, plans were made to hold a Thanksgiving chicken supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Gerow on Tuesday evening, November 24. The committee in charge includes Mrs. Matilda Waite, chairman; Mrs. W. Deyo, Mrs. E. Fowler, Mrs. S. D. Barnes and Mrs. W. A. Brach. Those present were Mrs. Alida Nabor, Mrs. Elbridge Gerow and daughter, Margery; Mrs. Gerow Griffin, Mrs. A. D. Harishorn, Mrs. S. D. Barnes, Miss Ida Ronk, Mrs. Herman Flick, Mrs. Matilda Waite, Mrs. Willett Deyo, Mrs. Giveans, Mrs. Clifford Roe, Mrs. Walter Brach and daughter, Pearl, and Mrs. Edward Pickens and daughter, Edna.

Arthur Foster, Pearl Brach and Mrs. H. O. Mills, as a committee from the Sunshine Circle, met with the Rev. and Mrs. Flick at the Sunday school room on Thursday evening to pack the contributions which the committee had collected to send to the Five Points Mission. As a result of which six barrels and one bag, consisting of one barrel and one-half bushel potatoes, three barrels apples, one barrel carrots and beets, two pumpkins, 14 squashes, six heads cabbage, one bushel turnips, 19 quarts canned fruit, one quart canned vegetables, two quarts pickles, three jars jelly and clothing were packed.

The committee in charge, in behalf of the Sunshine Circle, wish to thank all those who so generously contributed that this their first attempt might be a success.

In the News of the Day

MRS. A. HARRY MOORE

JOEL STONE

JAMES E. JONES.

JOHN W. SMITH.

Mrs. A. Harry Moore, wife of the Governor-elect of New Jersey, happy in his victory, declares she was positive from the first he would win. Joel Stone is prosecutor of Dr. H. E. Balzer, on trial for the slaying in Colorado of his imbecile daughter, who, he said, had no soul. James E. Jones has been named Director of Prohibition, which places him above his former chief, Prohibition Commissioner Haynes. Mayor John W. Smith, of Detroit, scored a big victory when he was reelected against a candidate backed by the Klan.

Greed for Heat Causes Illness

Heating the home is a world-wide question, says Dr. Alice G. Bryant of Boston, a member of the Gorgas Memorial Institute of Chicago. It demands the attention of both city and country dwellers. The subject is as old as when man first learned to make fire.

No one escapes the ill effects of unscientific heating and ventilating. This whole question is intensely human. "It is not enough houses should be built, but they should be built well as to health."

Human indoor dwellers have a greed for heat and more heat during the winter season when closed windows are in evidence. Do not be a slave to the thermometer. It does not tell the whole story. Science today links temperature control with humidity control and velocity of air current. Dust is a menace. Airborne germs do not exist, but dust-borne germs do exist. Humidifying the air reduces the dust.

Sahara Has More Humidity.

Many of our modern dwelling houses, more especially our city apartments, carry no higher than 20 to 30 per cent humidity, or even a lower humidity. They vie with the Sahara Desert, or even surpass it, for the desert's humidity averages about 30 per cent.

The humidity records for class rooms in a northern city high school building in winter were very much worse and there was no provision for humidifying the air. Result was "a very bad effect on the comfort, ability for work and the behavior of the pupils."

Causing "Common Colds."

Winter house warming brings an increase in respiratory troubles, and in so-called "common colds." Physicians know that such conditions, often repeated, develop into more serious troubles and they may be a factor in producing deafness.

Human beings constantly produce and give off heat. The atmosphere must not be too hot or too humid to interfere with the process. They must not serve as humidifiers.

House contents, walls, floors, ceilings, plants and air leakages absorb large quantities of water, and moisture condenses on window panes and cold surfaces. Many renewals of air occur in a room in a day and moisture is needed. The central heating system may function with full water requirements, but failing to do so, numerous kinds of devices may be used.

Producing Moisture in Winter.

The hot-air furnace should have a water reservoir in the air jacketed dome. With hot water or steam heating systems, pans of water are often placed on the radiators and their efficiency increased with the use of electric fans. These pans of water which serve as humidifiers should have a broad surface of water exposed with a rapid renewal of air over the surface of the water. In an ordinary sized house not one or two quarts of water, but 10 to 15 or more gallons of water should be evaporated daily.

Within a few years, phenomenal research work has been done and this country is behind no other in the science of heating and ventilating.

We cannot afford to disregard the forecasting of correct air conditioning for indoor dwellers. It is a study in preventive medicine—"Better Health" movement which the Gorgas Memorial Institute knows will continue to pay you big bonuses in health.

Odd Religious Test

At one of the religious celebrations in Morocco spiked balls are thrown into the air and allowed to fall on the throwers' heads. He who appears the most injured and ferocious is considered the most truly religious.

Useless, It Seems

"Please, could you change this here stamp? Tried to master of use to me. Father's licked it, mother's licked it, aunt's licked it, we've all licked it, and it won't stay on nohow."—Columbia Jester.
